2023-2024 Annual Report

A LEGACY OF SERVICE

Letters from the Presidents of the African-American Community Fund and The Dayton Foundation

"Just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve..."
- Matthew 20:28

After many years of service as a minister and throughout my career, I personally have found that my highest calling in life is serving others. Now, as president of the African-American Community Fund Advisory Board, I believe that we, the Board, also are here to follow the rich legacy of service placed before us by our founders, Mr. John E. Moore, Sr., and Mr. Lloyd E. Lewis, Jr., by promoting and utilizing philanthropy to grow, assist and improve the Dayton Region's African-American community.

Our 2023-24 annual report, "A Legacy of Service," honors the legacy of just a few of the stories within the AACF family of donors who have blazed trails for us to be able to award more than $1M in scholarships since inception to help students to achieve dreams that were once impossible for others. Additionally, awarding 7M in grants to date, including $329,043 during the 2023-24 fiscal year to grassroots nonprofits that are taking care of the many, not always widely known, needs in our community.

Each year, the Advisory Board strives to improve the awareness and reach of the AACF, and we will continue to do so in the year to come through our 4th annual Juneteenth Breakfast Fundraiser (June 20) and the 5th annual African-American Community Fund Golf Outing (September 23).

Please save these dates and share the stories you read in this report to help us bring awareness and inspire others to serve and create charitable legacies that will change our community for years to come.

What is the African-American Community Fund?

The African-American Community Fund (AACF), a component fund of The Dayton Foundation, was established in 1992 with a mission to increase African-American involvement in organized philanthropy, thereby strengthening nonprofits serving the African-American community.

Under the leadership of then-Governing Board members John E. Moore, Sr., and Lloyd E. Lewis, Jr., the AACF has helped the Dayton community recognize the importance of giving back in perpetuity. Thanks to their forward thinking and commitment to bringing this idea to fruition, AACF is now recognized as a national model for the promotion of philanthropy in the African-American community.

Established as a component fund group of The Dayton Foundation, the AACF is the first of its kind in the nation, and an umbrella for 191 current and deferred funds that support causes and interests that benefit the African-American community. The Dayton Foundation has supported this effort since inception by providing the initial seed money for AACF, and twice has made funds available for a matching gift program to encourage contributions.

AACF currently has funds with assets totaling more than $9.3 million. Since the fund's inception, more than 5,657 grants exceeding a total of $7 million have supported such efforts as sickle cell awareness, nutrition programs for homeless children and mentoring programs for urban youth. Additionally, $1,076,188.63 in scholarships has been awarded to help nearly 667 students further their education.

A New Generation of Leadership

Meet some of our newest Advisory Board members and hear why they are choosing to serve our community through the African-American Community Fund.

Danya Berry: I am so thankful for my service on the AACF Advisory Board! Knowing the history of this board and how much of an impact the AACF has had on the Greater Dayton community and its various programs, has been refreshing. I have had the pleasure of serving on the scholarship review committee, and it's amazing to see the talented youth in our community moving on to pursue their college dreams with the help of the AACF. Also, the annual Junteenth Breakfast has been my favorite event to attend each summer. We have worked hard to spread the message about the positive work the AACF has done and continues to do.

Richard Hairston: Serving on the AACF Advisory Board allows me to contribute to a purpose greater than myself. My passion for seeing my community thrive makes this experience incredibly rewarding.

My favorite part of being a board member is the opportunity to give back through my time and service.

Tierra McGee: I am honored to serve on the AACF Advisory Board for a number of reasons. I have an awesome opportunity to serve and support the growth of my community. I especially enjoy finding ways to build up our youth.

Charitable Options

Your charitable gifts through the African-American Community Fund are greatly appreciated and make a difference in the community in which we live. This is a brief introduction to some of the best, tax-savvy methods of charitable giving. However, we do urge you to discuss your financial situation with your tax, legal or other professional advisor. Charitable options that may be of consideration include:

Gifts of Cash

Most gifts are in the form of cash, via a check written by the donor or a donation online with a credit card. If you itemize your taxes, your outright gift is fully deductible for federal income tax purposes up to 60 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Gifts of Stock and Other Marketable Securities

Giving long-term, appreciated stock offers you two-fold tax savings. First, you avoid paying long-term capital gains tax on the increase in the value of the stock on the date of the gift. For income tax purposes, the value of such gifts is deductible up to 30 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Life Insurance

Life insurance can be one of the easiest ways to give by designating a percentage of the policy proceeds to the African-American Community Fund as a beneficiary.

Bequests

Through a deferred gift such as a bequest, your long-term charitable intent can be outlined during your lifetime. The African-American Community Fund can be named as a beneficiary in your will through a simple amendment called a codicil. Another option is to establish a payable on death (POD) or transfer on death (TOD) account. This designation will allow you to transfer bank accounts, brokerage accounts and certificates of deposit directly to your fund or charitable organization upon your passing.

IRA

Individuals 70 ½ or older can donate up to $108,000 as a qualified charitable distribution to a 501(c)(3) public charity and not have it show as income for tax purposes. Individuals who have a Required Minimum Distribution (RMD), may elect to donate their RMD to the African-American Community Fund and avoid claiming it as income by making a qualified charitable distribution (QCD). IRA QCDs may be used to create Scholarship Funds, Field-of-Interest funds, Community Impact Endowment Funds or Designated Funds.

Have questions about these charitable giving options? Contact The Dayton Foundation's Development and Donor Services department at (937) 222-0410.

Five Innovators of the African-American Community Fund

A LEGACY OF SERVICE

More than 190 charitable funds have been established under the umbrella of the African-American Community Fund (AACF) since 1992. A national model for organized philanthropy among African-Americans, the AACF is treasure trove of history and trailblazers whose perseverance, passion and service to our nation, our local community and others has left a legacy of impact within the Dayton Region.

The African American Community Fund is so blessed to have the charitable legacies of these five trailblazers and innovators that have paved the way for many under its umbrella.

A Fund for Dayton's First African-American Attorney is Under the Umbrella of AACF:

The first charitable fund of the African-American Community Fund actually was established before the AACF was founded. Moses H. Jones, Dayton's first black attorney, dreamed of a brighter future for African-Americans. Through his 1926 bequest, Mr. Jones left a legacy that would aid Dayton-area YMCAs that serve predominantly black communities. Nearly 60 years after his original bequeath, the Moses H. Jones Fund was established through The Dayton Foundation in 1984. When the AACF was established in 1992, the fund was moved under the umbrella of the AACF, becoming its first endowment fund. To date, the fund has awarded more than $34,300 to support Greater Dayton YMCA programs.

The First African-American to Graduate from an Ohio Music Conservatory Has a Fund with the AACF:

Henry Garcia loved music. A former professor of music at Wilberforce and Central State Universities and a local organ enthusiast, Mr. Garcia learned to play the organ at a young age. This passion for music eventually led him to apply to an Ohio music conservatory. When the institution denied him because of the color of his skin, he worked with the NAACP, the Urban League and even the State Attorney's office to appeal, fighting for four years until he was accepted. In 1953 Mr. Garcia became the first black student to graduate from the conservatory, receiving his master of music literature and organ degree.

When Mr. Garcia passed away in 2001, he left a $600,000 gift from his estate to establish the Henry A. Garcia Fund through the AACF of The Dayton Foundation, which at the time was the single-largest gift in the AACF's history. To date, the fund has awarded more than $504,600 in scholarships to minority students pursuing a career in music at Wilberforce and Central State Universities. Through his fund, Mr. Garcia is helping to ensure that students will never experience what he endured to get an education.

A Fund in Honor of Wilberforce University's First Female President is Under the AACF:

Described as a trailblazer and innovator, Yvonne Walker-Taylor was taught the importance of education from an early age. Born in 1916, Dr. Walker-Taylor was encouraged by her father, an African Methodist Episcopal minister and bishop and former Wilberforce University president, to pursue opportunities without limiting herself to conventional gender roles of the time. She broke many barriers throughout her life. After graduating from Wilberforce University at the age of 19, she later became its first female president and was the first daughter to follow her father in the presidency of a university in the United States.

In 2008, the Dr. Yvonne Walker-Taylor Women for Women Scholarship Fund II was established through the AACF of The Dayton Foundation in her memory. Today, the fund awards scholarships to young women who attend Wilberforce University, honoring Dr. Walker-Taylor's accomplishments, the example that she set for other women and her lifelong commitment to higher education and to promoting women's leadership.

The Nation's First African-American Naval Officers Established a Fund Through the AACF:

In 1944, the Navy commissioned its first 13 black officers, revered as the Golden Thirteen because of the gold shoulder bars on their uniforms. Despite the challenges of the time, including having some enlisted personnel refuse to salute them, these gentlemen persevered and opened new doors for future generations.

In honor of the 50th anniversary of The Golden Thirteen, a fund was established through the African-American Community Fund in 1994 to recognize their groundbreaking accomplishments and help African-Americans to pursue a career in the Navy. To date, the Golden Thirteen Naval Scholarship Fund has awarded more than $34,300 in scholarships to R.O.T.C. students enrolled in one of the six traditionally black colleges operating Naval R.O.T.C. units.

The Smithsonian Institution once included this AACF donor among the Most Important Black Women in History:

Charity Adams Earley, the first African-American woman to be commissioned by the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps (later renamed Women's Army Corps or WAC), broke barriers while serving during World War II. Charity was sent to England in 1944 to lead the first and only company of black WACs on an overseas mission, and ultimately earned the rank of major. These and other accomplishments led to her inclusion in the Ohio Women's Hall of Fame in 1979 and a Smithsonian Institution exhibit in 1982. Charity captured her remarkable story and the struggles she and other African-Americans faced in her 1989 memoir, One Woman's Army: A Black Officer Remembers the WAC.

After the war, Charity married Dr. Stanley A. Earley, Jr. and they made their home in Dayton. In 2002, shortly after Charity's passing, Dr. Earley established the Dr. Stanley A. Earley, Jr., and Charity Edna Earley Fund through the African-American Community Fund of The Dayton Foundation. He donated an initial gift, but their children; Stanley III and Judith are committed to grow the fund to honor their parents' legacy. Among the organizations the fund has awarded grants to is the Dayton Contemporary Dance Company and Wilberforce University.
